European Conference for Plurilingualism – 2005-2009

The undersigned have agreed to support the fundamental principles of

The European Charter for Plurilingualism

- Plurilingualism is inseparable from the affirmation of a political Europe,
- Language diversity ensures the plurality and the richness of representations,
- Plurilingualism is a form of freedom,
- Plurilingualism is a means to assert the durability of national entities in Europe which are privileged places for the practice of citizenship,
- Plurilingualism is a basic source of European civic awareness,
- Plurilingualism is one of the ways of tackling the "clash of civilisations" and the various forms of political, cultural and economic hegemony,
- Plurilingualism is a basic element element of scientific innovation,
- The right to language and to linguistic diversity cannot be divided,
- Plurilingualism ensures economic progress in a pacified world,
- Every worker has the right to work using the language of the country in which he or she lives,
- Educational systems must provide plurilingual education,
- The media must facilitate the expression of a wide range of cultures.
